

home.html

We tried to design group 18's original idea with this webpage. This page contains the users collection of gifs. It's a simple file system. Folders are represented as darkened images with a white text overlay. Files will appear like normal thumbnails. The three icons on the top left represent different views(grid,list,full). The folder icon creates a new directory. The question mark icon informs the user on how to use the file system. The search bar is an easy way to navigate through your directories. The right scroll bar shows gifs the user has uploaded and their current rating.

Future Development: With java script we plan on adding all the features to the icons described above. We would also like to implement drag and drop functionality to our file system. We would also like to implement a custom right click menus.
